

MORNING APPEAL

SUNDAY.....MAY 14

COFFIN'S NEW DEPARTURE.

The statement by the Tribune that Coffin is not a candidate for District Judge, because he does not care to give up his lucrative law practice for a lucrative bench practice, is taken with some grain's of allowance by the people familiar with Coffin's methods. Coffin has been an office seeker from a hundred miles up the gulch ever since he lived in Nevada.

He was first elected District Attorney of Ormsby. Just prior to the election a man named Burke was accused of being an incendiary. He was tried and acquitted as there was not one particle of evidence against him. Coffin insisted that his acquittal was the fault of the District Attorney who happened to be his opponent in the election. One night twelve masked men hung Burke at the grave yard gate and Coffin was elected District Attorney.

The APPEAL has the names of the men who helped lynch Burke.

Coffin next was elected member of the Assembly in the last Sharon campaign and so well did the bosses have the voters in hand that Coffin's record posted upon the dead walls, did not affect the result.

He was then appointed U. S. District Attorney and fell heir to the $90,000 timber trespass suit instituted by the U. S. Government against the V. & T. R. R. Co.

Which case soon afterwards folded its tent and glided silently from the calendar.

There was a vacancy in the Treasuryship of Ormsby occasioned by the death of James Fraser and Coffin at once applied for the place. His "pull" was strong and he got it.

He wanted to be Regent of the University and got that also.

He never accomplished much there except to railroad a relative of his into the office of head of the institution.

Then he wanted to be U.S. Judge, but a protest was sent from Reno with all of the valid reasons why he should not be given the office, fully set forth and sworn to. This petition reached the President and ended Coffin's chances.

The ring then proposed to run him for State Senator and requested the APPEAL to get in line, which the APPEAL promptly declined to do, promising, instead, to print his record. It was not deemed advisable to run him that year.

He was also a candidate for Supreme Judge at the Virginia City Convention, but after feeling of the situation concluded not to press the button as no one would do the rest. Bartine might have had the Supreme Court nomination, but Coffin persuaded him not to take it, but to stay in Congress. Coffin was looking out for himself as usual.

Now with all his record as an office seeker, does it seem reasonable to suppose that he is not after the District Judgeship this time and hopes to supplant Rising.

We are, therefore, forced to the conclusion that Mr. Coffin was playing the editor of the Tribune for a Chinaman when he told him that he would not take the place if offered. If he has quit office seeking he has certainly taken a new departure.

THE APPOINTMENT OF IRISH.

The APPEAL notes that some newspapers and several private individuals are not at all pleased that the first office of any note given to Nevada is a good position in the Agricultural Department and it went to General Irish. Some who affect great surprise, should have known if they didn't, that the appointment was a foregone conclusion months ago. Col. Irish, Gen. Irishes brother is the confidential friend of Cleveland, in all probability closer to him than anybody on the Coast and J. Sterling Morton, Commissioner of Agriculture has been a life long friend of Gen. Irish of Reno.

A word from either of those men would give Irish about anything he wanted. The joke of it is that while several parties were working to prevent Irish being made Surveyor General in Reno, an $1,800 a year office only, he gets something better, a $2,500 a year billet in Washington. It is folly to suppose that a Democratic Administration and Democratic Cabinet officers would fail to look after their friends.

Nine applications for State land were filed last week, embracing 2,919 acres.
